City, county and bank join to promote local tourism

STANFORD – The City of Stanford is partnering with the Lincoln County Fiscal Court and First Southern National Bank to create and fund a local tourism director.

Mayor Eddie Carter stood alongside Judge-Executive Jim Adams and FSNB Community President, Mike Taylor to introduce Megan Funk, of Elizabethtown, to the city council during Thursday night's meeting.

Funk – who currently serves as interim executive director for local non-profit Georgetown Main Street – accepted the invitation to fill the new tourism position in Stanford.

Carter said Funk was recommended about three months ago by Stanford business owners, Jess and Angela Correll, who have previously worked with Funk through Preservation Kentucky.

"We've had some tourism people in the past and just seemed like it hasn't worked out. So we talked about getting a partnership together," Carter said.

Carter said he and Adams met with Funk and were both impressed with her credentials and enthusiasm, as well as her passion for marketing tourism and history.

Last July, the Lincoln County Fiscal Court made the decision to eliminate the full time position of tourism director.

"We still do not think we (the county) needs a full-time tourism director. However, we are very open to being a partner and I think its a good first step," Adams said Thursday night.

Adams added that the county has local agreements with Crab Orchard and Hustonville and they're very familiar with what it takes to get funding through the county as a conduit.

"I think its a win-win situation," he said. "My court is on board to be responsible for one-third. I think its a good proposal."

Funk was formally offered the position, which will pay $35,000 in salary and provide a furnished office, courtesy of FSNB.

Taylor spoke on behalf of FSNB and expressed his excitement with the new partnership and position.

"We are so glad to be a part of Lincoln County and all of the rich history that we have and we're excited to have a tourism director who will focus on that and share it," Taylor said. "I think we have so much momentum with folks coming to see what we have. I was born and raised here and to feel that traction personally is just awesome."

Funk will be employed by the City of Stanford beginning July 1, and the total cost of $50,000 will be split three ways – a little over $16,500 each.

New Stanford city clerk approved

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – Mayor Eddie Carter has appointed a new Stanford city clerk and the city council has approved the appointment.

Dana Taylor was chosen as the new city clerk Thursday night after Carter's appointment gained the support and approval of all members of the city council.

The former city clerk, Sheila K. Hopkins, resigned in February after two weeks on the job but agreed to stay on and help until a replacement was found.

"It just didn't work out with Sheila. I appreciate her, she did a good job, but it just didn't work out," Carter said.

Carter said he's worked with Taylor closely for three months. "She's done a great job and I haven't seen her do anything wrong. She's there on time and she's courteous on the phone and to the people," Carter said.

Carter added that he spoke with Craig Butler, the city's bookkeeper, who has also worked with Taylor and has a good standing relationship with her.

Councilman Narren James said the mayor included him in the meetings with Taylor and his impression was that she would probably work out fine.

"Some of the issues that occurred in the previous position that led to her not continuing were actually rather unique issues that no longer exist,"

Brummett indicted in 2013 Lincoln shootings

By Todd Kleffman
tkleffman@amnews.com

STANFORD — A Lincoln County man has finally been indicted for allegedly shooting his granddaughter and trying to kill his wife two years ago.

Danny D. Brummett, 68, of 919 Simpson Road in Crab Orchard, was indicted for first degree assault, criminal attempt to commit murder and being a convicted felon in possession of a handgun.

The charges stem from a May 2013 incident at Simpson's home, when he allegedly shot his granddaughter, Monique Bummett, in the leg and then fired shots at his wife, Kay Brummett, as she was running from the house.

Danny Brummett then went down the road to the home of his son, David Brummett, where he shot himself in the head but did not die of the wound and was hospitalized.

Kentucky State Police previously said they were waiting on Danny Brummett to recover before charging him. KSP spokesman Trooper Robert Purdy said Wednesday that the delay in the indictment was caused by Brummett's head wound, his incarceration on an unrelated case and the promotion and transfer of Trooper Rodney Wren, who investigated, to a job outside of Post 7.

Bond was set $500,000. Wren testified against Brummett before the grand jury.

Wren was also the investigator in another case from 2013 that was brought before the grand jury last month. John E. Martin, 24, of 6335 Ky. 1194, was charged with

Locked gates on Stanford's city lake upsets local fisherman

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – A local fisherman and 30-year resident of Stanford addressed the city council Thursday night to express his concerns with the locked gates outside of Rice Lake – a popular fishing spot in Lincoln County.

The city lake, located on Mason Gap Road, serves as one of the two sources of drinking water for the City of Stanford, and is overseen by a three-person water commission.

After several issues surrounding the lake arose – including a submerged vehicle, the discovery of a meth lab, and scattered trash – Stanford Water Department Manager Ryan Owens said the decision was made to lock the gates in an effort to keep the city drinking water clean.

Marty Pulliam told the council he has been living in Lincoln County for 30 years and up until recently, the city lake has been open to the public for recreational use and fishing.

"Just two years ago, I was out there at 2 o'clock in the morning – me and the pastor of our church and his son – and we were frog hunting," Pulliam said. "Here recently, its gone from locking it up at night to all the time. I went by there one Saturday morning at 10 a.m. and the gate's locked."

Pulliam said as a citizen of Stanford he is partial owner of the lake and he doesn't like being locked out of something he partly owns.

"I don't even fish a lot at the city lake but I know there are a lot of people that do and

The locked gate outside of the Stanford's city lake and water facility on Mason Gap Road was an issue of debate at the Stanford City Council meeting on Thursday.

NEWS FROM STANFORD NAZARENE CHURCH

By Buford Edwards II

Our mission at Stanford Nazarene Church is to share the gospel message of Jesus Christ to all the world and to be a place of healing and hope to all in need. Come as you are, Jesus will meet you there.

Sunday morning, May 10, the Lord was surely with us as we sang, rejoiced, and shared in the Word through Bro. Buford's message from 1 Timothy 6 on the subject "Get into the Fight!" The blessings continued to flow Sunday evening as we celebrated the deliverance of the Lord and lifted our voices through song and testimony as well as the message from 2 Timothy 4 on "Finish the Race!"

Join us Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. for our "Book Club." We are finishing up a study on the Book of Daniel and seeking the Lord's will for our next study. Also, the youth have powerful services and there are classes for our children. It's a busy place on Wednesday, come check it out.

The church is working hard on year two of the "Five Year Plan." We are actively raising funds to purchase a church van and pay off the debt on the fellowship hall. If you would like to donate to the cause, you can drop off a donation at any service or even mail in a donation. Just remember to write "Five Year Plan," somewhere (memo field of check or envelope of cash) in order for it to be properly designated.

Monday, July 13 is the next Men's Group meeting. We will be gathering at the Stanford McDonalds at 7 p.m. to meet and fellowship. Come join us.

Mark your summer calendars now! The 2105 Pack the Pew Sunday will be Sunday, June 28, with morning services followed by a fellowship meal. Also, on Saturday, July 11, we will be having our 2015 Vacation Bible School. Backyard Ministries will be providing food and inflatables immediately after the VBS program.

Are you looking for a home church? There are so many excellent churches in our area it may be hard to find that right "fit." If this describes you, stop by and visit us sometime. On Sunday mornings, we follow the traditional format with Sunday School at 10 a.m. and worship at 11 a.m. On Sunday night, we begin at 6 p.m. and have an open forum for singing and testimony followed by the message by either Bro. Buford or Youth Pastor Dennis Hasty. On the first Sunday night of each month, we devote the entire service to singing and testimonies. On Wednesday night we carve out the 7 p.m. hour to Biblical teaching for adults, youth and children. Adults meet in the sanctuary in an informal setting, children in the Sunday School rooms and the youth alternate between the church and fellowship hall.

What's our dress code? Simply put, there isn't one. Come as you are, we just ask that you wear clothes. For more information about the church and different activities that are available, visit us on the web at www.stanfordchurchofthenazarene.com, and as always don't forget to "like" us on Facebook. You can contact the church at (606) 365-1260 and leave a message. Pastor Buford or someone else will give you a call back.

Want to see a service? We have established a Youtube channel and all services are posted to the channel and linked to the Facebook page.

The church has an active food assistance program. If you know of anyone or have a need yourself, please leave a message at the church.

PLEASANT VIEW BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

By Scena Ann Petrey

There will be a special luncheon for new members and guests Sunday, May 17 at noon. We will have a church-wide fellowship and KHO Cake/Craft Auction May 17 at 6:30 p.m. Please bring a vegetable, salad, or dessert. The church will provide the meat, bread, and drinks. Help support our Youth Ministry Missions as they will be attending KHO July 12-17.

Jessica Wall gave a brief testimony on being a mother Sunday, May 10. She uses the following as her model to her own children: Not just to say "I love you", but to also "show it". A good model for all mothers to use!

Bro. Kyle continued with his series of messages and preached on the fifth commandment. "Honor Your Father and Mother" from Exodus 20:12 was the very timely sermon.

The four points of his message was respect is earned; honor is given; honor means different things at different times; honoring our parents comes with a promise; and the Savior honored His parents.

Jesus cared so much for His mother and that is proven from the cross. While He was hanging on the cross, He presented His mother to John, the disciple, and said she is your mother and you her son.

Jessica Wall sends a heart felt thank you to Patriot Petals, Hilltop Florist and Your Village Shop for their donation of flower arrangements. Thank you also to Kentucky Soaps and Such for donating several of their lotions for our Mother's Day dinner for single mothers. The dinner was Friday, May 8.

We extend sympathy and prayers to Geneva Faw and her family. Her sister Estonia passed away last week.

You are invited to a baby shower for Jessica and Bro. Kyle on May 24 at 5 p.m. in the fellowship hall. They are in need of basic necessities.

The choir will be working each Wednesday on a special patriotic musical, "I Love This Land". It will be presented on Sunday, July 5.

The Senior Adults will be going to Boone's Tavern in Berea for lunch on Thursday, May 28. The bus will leave the church at 10:30; we will return around 4 p.m.

On June 12 the senior adults are planning a trip to the Creation Museum for a day excursion. We will have a picnic lunch there on the grounds before visiting the museum.

Thought for the week: Abraham Lincoln said, "I like to see a man proud of the place in which he lives. I like to see a man live so that his place will be proud of him!"

HIGHLAND UNITED METHODIST CHURCH NEWS

Sunday, May 10, Mother's Day, a day of celebration, a day of thanks, a day of remembrance. Along with the usual crowd, there were many grown children who skipped their own churches to be with their mothers at Highland United Methodist Church on this day.

Prayer concerns added to our growing list include Margaret Scilley (cataract surgery), Keith Cantrell, Harry Mellinger, Tony Day (car accident), and several unspoken requests. A big prayer of thanksgiving went up, along with applause, when our own Doug May WALKED into church! No wheelchair! Thank you, Lord, for hearing our prayers. Any additions to the written prayer list available each Sunday can be given to Rev. Scholtz or Karen Davis.

The recognition of our mothers included oldest mother present Heloise Reed, who was only three months older than Joanne Davis; mother with youngest child present Mindy Pennington; youngest mother present Rebecca Garcia; mother with most family members present Iva Young. These women were given a special potted plant. All women were given potted flowers as they left church. Thanks to Joe Hutchison for handing these out.

The men's choir sang "Faith of Our Mother" to the mothers in attendance. Very good job!

Several children enjoyed children's church with Scot and Dawn Cheetham. They made gifts to give their mothers.

This coming Sunday is "Student Recognition Sunday." All students graduating High School or College/University will be recognized. Also, "Memorial Sunday" will be observed on May 24th. Those who have had a deceased loved one since last Memorial Day are asked to turn in the name and information to Rev. Scholtz. If possible, provide a small picture (5x6) in a frame to Doris Scilley. During worship service the names of those being honored will be read. A flower will be placed by a loved one of the deceased into a bouquet of flowers as each name is read.

Plans for a Military Memorial Service with a guest speaker at the cemetery at 2 p.m. on May 24 are coming together. Shelby Reed is in charge of organizing this service. Come join us for this special event.

Bro. Scholtz's message was about the way mothers can build a strong, sure foundation in their child's spiritual life. It was entitled "Building a House" and based on Luke 6:46-49. He gave three important things that must go into building this foundation. Love, Faith, and Hope. One example is that the early mothers of our Highland United Methodist Church invested all three of these things into this little church many, many years ago. This was done through their love of the Lord, faith that their children would come to love the Lord in this church, and hope that this church would continue to touch the lives of their children's children and on down through each generation thereafter. That sure foundation remains here today. A strong foundation.

Come join us on Sunday morning at Highland United Methodist Church to fellowship with one another. The "one-room" Sunday School lesson starts at 10 a.m. and worship service begins at 11 a.m. A fellowship meal for everyone is shared every Sunday after the service. All are welcome.

Bro. Bert and Sis. Toy Hall

Olive Baptist to honor pastor

The Olive Baptist Church will host an open house reception to honor their pastor, Bro. Bert Hall, as he celebrates 40 (plus) years in the ministry. Bro. Bert Hall preached at several churches in Pulaski and surrounding counties, including his home church, Northside Baptist in Science Hill. Before accepting the call as pastor of King Bee Baptist, he later had the great privilege of pastoring Eden Baptist Church and Good Hope Baptist Church. While recovering from back surgery, he and his family attended Pleasant Hill Baptist Church in Somerset before becoming pastor of Olive Baptist Church. Bro. Hall has been serving as pastor there since 1999. Additionally, Bro. Hall and wife Toy Lee "Mofield" Hall served as foster parents for 12 years; being a receiving home for newborns from three surrounding counties. Many also remember the in-home day care: "Miss Toy's Toy Box" that the Halls operated from their home in Science Hill.

Bro. Hall along with his wife Toy Lee have four children: Scott (Cindy) Hall, Kala (Daniel) Whitt, MayAnn (Edwin) Alexander and Donnie (Tamara) Hall, along with nine grandchildren and three great grandchildren, all of whom are very proud of the example they have set of the importance of faith, marriage, family and friends.

If you are an acquaintance of Bro. Bert and Sister Toy Hall, then our church extends an invitation to come celebrate on May 23 from 2-4 p.m. located at 1835 East 328, Waynesburg. For directions you may call (606) 423-2480.

More than 200 students from 10 different high schools across Kentucky competed in the World Language Association's State Showcase and Competition held at Centre College on April 25. ## Lincoln County French students bring home first and third from World Language competition

abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – Lincoln County High School is congratulating two French students who received top awards after competing against 200 students from across the state at the World Language Association's State Showcase and Competition.

LCHS French teacher, Agatha Manion, said students from LCHS joined others from various high schools across Kentucky at Centre College on April 25 to present and be judged on cultural projects.

Students were required to prepare cultural projects and perform writing, reading and listening assessments in French or Spanish languages. They were also required to participate in an interview conversation with a judge, and describe details of their cultural projects – all while speaking Spanish or French.

"They created this project ahead of time for a school showcase and then we chose which ones to take to the competition," Manion said. "Once they got there they had to write a prompt they hadn't seen before in Spanish or French."

Manion said she couldn't be more proud of her students.

"They had to keep themselves calm all while speaking in a second language with an adult they had never met before," she said. "We did give them a little bit of help in a study session earlier that week – told them what to expect and how to do their best."

The students didn't know the questions that were going to be asked though, she said.

Manion said when they weren't competing or presenting, the students were participating in workshops like Chinese calligraphy, drama workshops, and Spanish storytelling workshops.

Ki Barrett – who won first place in the state for French language – performed a dramatic monologue which she wrote and performed in French. The monologue was about the worth of a life without passion.

Emily Simpson grabbed third place in the state for French after she presented a welded art piece representing various men from French culture amongst other symbols such as the national flag and flowers.

Another LCHS student – Carmen Green – placed among the top ten out of 150 Spanish students for her presentation about herself, her friends and her family.

Hustonville moves forward with EMS building resolution

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

HUSTONVILLE – The city of Hustonville has passed a resolution to apply for grant funding for the construction of a new Hustonville Fire and EMS Station.

Hustonville City Council members voted unanimously May 5 to seek the funding and to pay $35,000 toward the required local match.

Mayor Peyton said the Lincoln County Fiscal Court has also agreed to give $15,000 in local match.

"I think that's a big statement on the fiscal court's part to even get involved in this facility," Peyton said during Tuesday night's meeting.

The approved $35,000 will bring the local match total to $50,000. Once the land of the new station's prospective site is appraised, the appraisal amount will be added to the local match total.

To be eligible for the $500,000 HUD Community Development Block Grant funding, the city is required to provide a local match of $125,000, Peyton said.

"That property was purchased 20 years ago for $70,000. I really hope to see it appraised for $100,000 today, but I don't know what it's going to appraise for," he said.

Peyton said he doesn't know of any other entity that could do what the city can to get a new fire and EMS station back up and running on the west side of the county.

"I think this is one of the most important votes that we'll ever make at this table," he said.

Council member Jimmy Evans agreed that the council's vote has an opportunity to save some lives in years to come.

"I think anytime you're given the opportunity to spend $35,000 to get half-a-million dollars in grant money, if you can do it, you should do it," Peyton said.

The chances of acquiring the grant are good, Peyton said, adding that he's been to several meetings in Lexington and reached out to the offices of Congressman Hal Rogers and Representative David Meade.

Peyton reminded council members that they would not lose the $35,000 if the grant application was denied.

"This is not a check that has to be written today, it's a resolution" he said. "It doesn't cost us anything to apply."

Following the resolution, council members voted to allow the mayor to contact the engineering firm Brand Stetter Carroll, out of Lexington, to discuss the construction of the new fire and EMS building.

Peyton said he has contacted South East Property Appraisals out of Somerset for an estimate on the commercial appraisal of the property located at the intersection of U.S. 27 and 127.

The council voted and agreed to pay $1,250 to $1,500 for a commercial property appraisal.

A five-member design committee was created and approved by the council to oversee the building project.

Mayor Peyton and council members Jimmy Lane and Brad Smith were appointed to the committee.

Peyton said two people from Stanford EMS will be chosen to serve on the committee as well.

In other business, the council agreed to update the city's water level monitoring system and add a new auto-dialing system to allow for a quicker response to water problems.

The current telemetry system – which is a radio read that monitors the water level in the Moreland tank and sends a radio signal to the Junction City tank to turn on pumps when it calls for water – was struck by lightning last month during stormy weather.

Mayor Peyton said they "band-aided" the system back together and its currently functioning but if it were to go down, no one would know until customers start calling to say they don't have any water.

"By then its too late," Peyton said. "By then we're already in a boiled water advisory and we've got customers being inconvenienced with a lack of water service."

With the updated telemetry system and new auto-dialing feature, if something were to go wrong, an automatic call would go out to an assigned number, and the problem could be resolved before any customers are affected.

"This never would have come up if lightning hadn't struck our system," Peyton said.

The council approved a proposal from C.I. Thornburg Co., to update the system and add the new feature for a total cost of $13,377.

LOCAL HEALTH NEWS

Local center combines chiropractics and fitness

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – When it comes to bodybuilding physiques, the names Gene and Tina Goode are well known across Kentucky and many other states.

As National Physique Committee Judges and the creators of one of the largest bodybuilding shows in the state – the Goode's have seen and trained some of the fittest bodies in the U.S.

"And it all started right here in Lincoln County," Gene said.

Gene and Tina decided to hold the Kentucky Open bodybuilding show close to home for convenience and to contribute to their own community. So the show was held in the Lincoln County High School Auditorium for two years.

With each year, the show has continued to grow in interest and attendance numbers, so the couple decided to move the event to a larger facility in Frankfort.

Despite the show's departure from the county, the Goode's have continued to maintain a motivating, health-oriented presence in Lincoln through Precision Chiropractic and Fitness Center.

"Every year we have all kinds of people from this county compete and win in the show," Gene said.

The Goode's opened the Precision Chiropractic Center in 2004 and two years later, a complete fitness center was added to offer a package of training and overall body care.

Gene described the fitness center as a room filled with people whose quality of life has improved in one way or another.

"Our members have earned a pat on the back for the success they've had," he said. "There is inspiration to be found everywhere here."

Precision Fitness is home to several exercise classes, from zumba to dance camp to Silver Sneakers – a wellness program designed specifically for older adults who want to continue an active lifestyle.

Through participating fitness centers like Precision, the Silver Sneakers Program offers no-cost membership to adults on Medicare for age or disability. For those participants, Precision offers four Silver Sneakers classes from Monday through Thursday, at 10 a.m.

"After retirement we tend to seclude ourselves," Gene said. "We lose that social aspect of our lives and the Silver Sneakers Program allows people to get back into a rhythm and routine. Most of our members do the classes all four days of the week."

Gene said one day he walked into the room where one of the Silver Sneakers classes was held and he found 40 women singing "Row Your Boat."

"It was just adorable," he said. "The fitness center gives you the motivation of the people around you."

Precision Fitness Center is open as early as 5:30 a.m. – for those who have to work most of the day – and closes at 8 p.m.

Gene said there are a lot of professional people who use that time slot to work out.

"Our members are police officers, lawyers, doctors – all kinds of people," Gene said.

While the fitness center tones and tightens, Dr. Sterling Skipper in the chiropractic center next door provides comfort and correction, personal x-rays and massage therapy, among other services.

'we get you better, then we get you fit' is a Precision motto, Gene said.

As the only fitness center in Stanford, Precision attempts to provide help for all health and fitness needs in the local community. For those who want to shed some weight, nutritional advice, eating programs and personal training is available.

"Overweight people don't like being overweight," Gene said. "But sometimes they just don't know how to get out of it. We can help with that."

Monthly memberships are $28 and $20 for any member added to the account. For more information contact (606) 365-2002 or visit the facility at 109 Lily St. in Stanford.

"Get Healthy Stanford" month declared in June

By Abigail Whitehouse
abigail@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD – The Stanford City Council has declared June 2015 as "Get Healthy Stanford" month.

The proposal came from council member Dr. Narren James – also a local family practice physician in Stanford – and Mayor Eddie Carter expressed his support of the proclamation.

"I think its a great idea. There are people in the community who don't eat right, don't get enough exercise – like myself – nobody knows more than me, after my stroke, how important diet is."

Carter, who suffered a stroke last year, said he underwent a diet and exercise program through Dr. James' clinic and it has made a tremendous difference for his health.

James said the initial motivation for the proclamation came after he attended a medical meeting in Louisville and heard commentary about how the health of a community can affect the potential of new business.

At the meeting James said he learned about a business that was considering moving to a county in Kentucky and after looking into the body mass indexes of all sixth-graders in the county, the business decided not to locate there.

"This is the first generation of Kentucky children who are expected to live a shorter lifespan than their parents, simply because of the obesity issues and health practices," James said.

James added that the issue of health is one that the city council has seen first-hand with the passing of former Stanford mayor-elect T.J. Hill.

"Right in that seat, right now, should be T.J. Hill sitting," James said. "There's no doubt his early demise was very much lifestyle-related."

Several health-oriented activities could be planned for the month of June, James said, including one idea that came to him as he was walking into City Hall and saw the picture of Hill hanging on the wall.

"It came to mind, why don't we kick it off with a T.J. Hill History Walk," James said. "So that's just one idea. There is a whole host of ideas that we can plan during the month of June which will highlight issue of health for our community."

Following the proclamation, a committee will be created to oversee the project which James said he would be happy to chair.

"The mayor is willing to be a part of it and we can gather additional people to help plan some activities," James said.

James said he plans to approach the Lincoln County Fiscal Court with the proposal to declare the month of June as "Get Healthy Lincoln County" and he hopes that if this year is successful, it will continue in years to come.

May is Mental Health Month

May is Mental Health Month, and Ephraim McDowell Health is calling on the community to help the one in five American adults who live with a diagnosable, treatable mental health condition, and understand how important mental health is to overall health.

Addressing mental health before Stage 4, this year's theme for Mental Health Month, calls attention to the importance of addressing mental health symptoms early, identifying potential underlying diseases, and planning an appropriate course of action on a path towards overall health. Mental health conditions should be treated long before they reach the most critical points in disease process – before Stage 4.

“When we think about cancer, heart disease, or diabetes, we don't wait years to treat them,” says Christy Mullins, director of Behavioral Health Services at Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center. “We start before Stage 4 – we begin with prevention. So, why don't we do the same for individuals who are dealing with potentially serious mental illness? This Mental Health Month, we are encouraging everyone to learn the signs, ask for help if needed, address symptoms early, and plan an appropriate course of action on a path towards overall health.”

One of the quickest and easiest ways to determine whether you are experiencing symptoms of a mental health condition is to take a mental health screening. Mental Health America has online screening tools for depression, anxiety, bipolar disorder, and post-traumatic stress disorder at mhascreening.org. MHA's goal is to get every American screened and aware of their mental health, so they can address it #B4Stage4.

MHA has also developed a series of fact sheets available on its website (www.mentalhealthamerica.net/may) on realizing the critical importance of addressing mental health early, recognizing risk factors and signs of mental illness and how and where to get help when needed.

May is Mental Health Month was started 66 years ago by Mental Health America, to raise awareness about mental health conditions and the importance of good mental health for everyone.

“When feelings and emotions get overwhelming, it's hard to know what to do,” says Mullins. “Sometimes these early symptoms might never become serious. Like a cough, they often go away on their own, and are nothing to fear. But sometimes, they are a sign of something more severe and shouldn't be ignored. Taking a screening is the first step to protect your mental health, and addressing mental illness before Stage 4.”

Research shows that by ignoring symptoms, we lose 10 years in which we could intervene in order to change people's lives for the better. During most of these years most people still have supports that allow them to succeed – home, family, friends, school, and work. Intervening effectively during early stages of mental illness can save lives and change the trajectories of people living with mental illnesses.

Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center offers inpatient Behavioral Health Services through a multidisciplinary team that includes psychiatrists, nurses, counselors, activity therapists and other support personnel, who deliver compassionate, supportive care in a 16 bed inpatient unit. Individuals may be admitted by a board-certified psychiatrist based on referrals by primary care physicians, human service agencies and other mental health providers, or individuals may self-refer.

During typical inpatient treatment, a patient will participate in a variety of individual and group-focused activities to learn more effective tools for living. As progress is made, the staff will prepare the patient for the transition from the hospital back to the community.

Older adults may face challenges related to aging. Life changes may result in psychiatric and/or behavioral symptoms ranging from anxiety and/or depression to dementia and paranoia. The seven-bed Geropsychiatric Unit – one of only a few available in this area – is specifically designed to help older adults cope with changes they may be encountering. The program is short-term and emphasizes dignity and respect for each individual.

Ephraim McDowell also offers outpatient behavioral health services including addiction and recovery treatment at 222 South Third Street in Danville. Appointments can be scheduled by calling (859) 239-5570.

For more information about inpatient Behavioral Health Services, please call (859) 239-4000.

2015 EIEA program is accepting online nominations for top entrepreneurs

The 2015 Excellence in Entrepreneurship Awards (EIEA) program is seeking online nominations for the region's top small business owners, entrepreneurs, and nonprofit organizations in Southern and Eastern Kentucky.

The EIEA program – honoring excellence in entrepreneurship since 2001 – promotes and recognizes entrepreneurs who exemplify the spirit of entrepreneurship by creating and managing a successful business venture or nonprofit organization in the region.

Nominations will be accepted in four EIEA business categories: For-Profit Business (in existence five years or more); Start-Up Business (in existence less than five years); Not-for-Profit Entity (in existence at least six months) and Young Entrepreneur (25 years old or younger).

and grow their businesses successfully that we seek to honor.”

To submit a nomination, visit <http://www.kyea.org> and fill out the online nomination form. Nominations will be accepted through June 5. Individuals and organizations may self nominate.

Nominees are judged on the economic success of the enterprise, contributions to the community, job creation, and entrepreneurial and business operational achievements. The program is open to small business owners, entrepreneurs, and nonprofit organizations within the EIEA service area in 55 Southern and Eastern Kentucky communities.

The top three finalists in each of the four EIEA business award categories will be recognized and the winners announced at an EIEA regional awards recognition program and luncheon on Sept. 14 at The Center for Rural Development in Somerset.

“While entrepreneurs might simply see their venture as a way to provide for their families, they are also providing much-needed products or services and employment for families in their communities,” Traver said.

“Please help us find those entrepreneurs who are changing the landscape of their communities and nominate them for the 2015 EIEA category for which they qualify.”

The EIEA program is sponsored by Eastern Kentucky University's College of Business and Technology, Kentucky Highlands Investment Corporation, Southeast Kentucky Economic Development Corporation, and The Center for Rural Development.

Heritage Hospice honored for veteran services

By Emily Toadvine
etoadvine@heritagehospice.com

Heritage Hospice has been on a quest to better serve veterans through a national We Honor Veteran program. The program has four levels and Heritage Hospice recently earned Level 4, the program's highest level.

Janelle Wheeler, Heritage Hospice executive director, says, “We strive daily to provide the best quality of care possible and to be sensitive to the unique needs of our patients. It is truly an honor to serve our veteran patients and to be able to say thank you for all they have done for us through their service in our nation's military.”

As part of honoring veterans, Heritage Hospice has held community veteran recognition ceremonies in churches, nursing facilities, theaters and at Centre College. Pins especially designed for Heritage Hospice and certificates of recognition are part of these events to honor veterans in Boyle, Garrard, Lincoln and Mercer counties. Along these lines, a special tribute to veterans will be held at 11 a.m. May 16 at the Lincoln County Public Library. The oldest veteran will receive special recognition. All veterans in Lincoln County are invited.

When veterans are admitted to Heritage Hospice care, staff educates themselves about their military service. Since the beginning of 2012 to April 2014, Heritage Hospice has served more than 150 veterans. That number includes 41 World War II veterans and 44 Vietnam veterans.

When possible, veteran volunteers are paired with veteran patients in both the hospice and Transitions program. Heritage Hospice welcomes interested veterans to consider becoming volunteers.

Even though Heritage Hospice has reached the top level of the We Honor Veterans program, staff continues to seek ways to reach out to veterans and work with Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion posts in our area.

One special activity that staff relishes is the annual Heritage Hospice Veterans Appreciation Day event at the National Guard Armory. Sharon Martin is the chairman of the planning committee for this event. This Nov. 11 marks the eighth year for this event where Masonic groups prepare a fish and barbecue dinner for 1,200 veterans and their guests. For information, contact Martin to aid with the appreciation day, call 859-236-2425.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Stanford Water Department responds to city lake letter

I would like to take a few moments and address the recent closing of Rice Lake to the public.

Rice Lake is one of two major drinking water sources for the City of Stanford and McKinney Water District.

Over the years the City has allowed people to fish at the lake either on the bank or on the water using no gas powered motor boats. Over the last four years Rice Lake has had the following events occur; pulled four vehicles out of the lake, a stolen truck burnt at the head of the lake, dumping of TV’s, couches, brush, many other household garbage, found a meth lab on the dam, oil being changed, drug deals being made and numerous people four wheeling in the spill way and on the dam.

The decision to close the lake was a tough decision but it is was a decision that was made to protect the drinking water for those who consume it. Had we not took action to close the lake and something had contaminated the source, I would be writing a letter today instead explaining to the public why we didn’t close the lake knowing all this was going on and our drinking water was contaminated. Thanks for understanding that we are being proactive to protect you, the consumer.

Get off your couch and use technology to enjoy the outdoors

By Ben Kleppinger
bkleppinger@jessaminejournal.com

This has happened to me more times than I’d like to admit: the sun will be shining, the temperature will be perfect and there will be all kinds of opportunities to enjoy the outdoors, and I’ll be inside on my couch, staring at a screen for no good reason.

It’s a tricky thing to avoid because taking “just a moment” to do something online can so easily turn into minutes and even hours of half-mindless web surfing. And the more time you spend online instead of outside, the more it becomes the normal, comfortable thing and the less you feel like going outside.

Eventually, in the worst-case moments, you can even suffer from what I call “comfortable couch syndrome” — when going outside just to relax and enjoy a beautiful day can feel like a chore.

But there are ways to turn the power of the Internet around and use it to get yourself out the door and into the real world instead.

Here are some apps, games, and other socially connected ideas that you should try out if you want to combat comfortable couch syndrome in your own life:

- Use a run-tracking app: There are a wide variety of apps for your smartphone out there aimed at helping you get out and run — or jog or even just walk.

There are straightforward apps such as “RunKeeper” and “MapMyRun” that let you keep track of your outdoor exercising routes with GPS and monitor how many calories you’ve burned.

The app “Endomondo” lets you compete against your friends and challenge them to run a real-world route faster than you, while “Nike+ Running” will give you nearly endless stats and is geared toward geekier athletic types who want to measure their performance and beat their personal bests.

There are even apps such as “Zombies, Run!” that put a different twist on running by turning what might seem like a tough, sweaty task into a game: Can you run fast enough and long enough to escape the zombies pursuing you?

- Play capture the flag: Download the app “Ingress” for a unique gaming experience that overlays a virtual world of portals, energy, weapons and shields on top of the streets and landmarks around your city.

Ingress, which is played by an estimated 7 million people worldwide, is what’s known as an “augmented reality” game. Boot up the app and you can use it to see invisible “portals” that are located at important landmarks and special buildings with significance in real life.

You can claim these portals for your team if your quick enough, powerful enough and/or lucky enough. You can just as quickly lose the portal back to the other side if an enemy player passes through the neighborhood and hacks in.

Ingress can provide a great adventure and a good amount of exercise on a day off, and it may even lead you to discover new things about neighborhoods you thought you already knew.

- Go geocaching: Started a little more than 15 years ago, geocaching has become a fairly mainstream hobby in more recent years.

Geocaches are hidden containers placed in public spaces but concealed cleverly so no one will notice them unless they are specifically looking for them in the right place. GPS coordinates provided by a geocaching service — geocaching.com is the largest such service — can guide geocachers to within a few feet of a hidden cache.

Some caches are tiny and hold only a small piece of paper so that successful geocachers who locate the cache can log when they found it. Others are larger and can hold many tradable items, making it possible to leave a small item in the cache and take another item with you as a memento.

Caches come in every shape and every size and you can find them from mall parking lots to the tops of mountains. There are probably half a dozen or more caches within 10 minutes of where you are right now.

- Give yourself a photo challenge: You know you love it when you get likes on your social-media posts. And nothing gets likes better than photos.

So go out and earn yourself a whole bunch of likes by challenging yourself to post one photo every day of something outside.

If you want to maximize likes, you’ll find you can’t just post a photo of your backyard day after day — you’ll need to head out and find other photogenic places to take snapshots. This challenge will naturally get you exploring the world around you and provide positive reinforcement for that behavior, thanks to all your friends’ likes.

- Visit a state park: Kentucky’s system of state parks is one of the best in the nation. Since you already live here, you might as well take advantage.

The “Kentucky State Parks Guide” app is a fantastic one that will help you quickly find parks near you. And it provides features such as a compass and downloadable GPS trail maps so you can go exploring in the wilderness with nothing more than your smartphone.

You can also search parks by the activities they have available, view a calendar of events and much more.

AN ENCOURAGING WORD

Future possibilities have transformational power

By Howard Coop

“I had hoped, but...”

There is disappointment and finality in those words. They indicate that something especially desired appeared to be a distinct possibility. But things changed, and that hoped for possibility vanished. For some reason, that which was eagerly anticipated did not happen. It was gone, and along with it, hope was gone; it was in the past.

I’ve been there, and I know the feeling. I have experienced that bitter disappointment when something I desired with all my heart vanished. That experience isn’t pleasant.

One winter morning I was busy at my desk. I was excited and making plans for a wonderful day. An event, important to me and one to which I looked forward with great anticipation, was scheduled for that evening. In one way or another, all of my plans for that day revolved around preparation for that very special event. I expected a great evening, and deep in my heart, I knew it would be pleasant. My hopes were exceedingly high.

Then it happened. A little before noon a message---a depressing message---came that changed everything. Due to weather conditions that made travel dangerous and difficult, that special event that I had so anxiously anticipated had been canceled, and I was deeply disappointed. In a moment, my hope for an exciting evening vanished; it was in the past.

That does not have to be the end. Disappointment comes, and things change, but life goes on. After receiving that disappointing message, I plodded through the work of the day until, later that afternoon, a second message came. That message informed me that the canceled event to which I had looked forward with pleasure had been rescheduled. My spirit was renewed, and my hope returned. Things changed, and I felt better. The remaining activities of the day were more pleasant.

Hope that is a future possibility is a transforming power. It lifts life to a new level and makes everything better.

LC track competes with best in CKC

By Nancy Leedy

Sophomore Logan Godbey and seniors Tiandra Hocker and Royce Cummins were the leaders of the pack for the Lincoln County Lady Patriots and Patriots in three different events at Friday's Central Kentucky Conference Meet at Boyle County High School.

Godbey finished fourth in the hotly-contested 1600-meter run and earned a top-10 finish in the 800-meter dash. She turned in a time of 5:50.02 to claim fourth in the 1600 and crossed in a time of 2:39.43 in the 800 to place eighth overall. Host Boyle County had the first-place runner in both the 1600 and 800, with Nikki Coffey taking first in both events, with times of 5:31.71 and 2:25.63, respectively.

Hocker garnered a fourth-place finish in the field event of shot put. The Lady Patriot shot putter threw a distance of 30-04 to earn the high finish, more than two feet better than the next best competitor, Desi Patton of Mercer County. The winning throw in the event was 35-02 by Pulaski County's Eulah Perkins.

Cummins was in a full-out sprint at the finish of the 400-meter dash as he tried to secure a high finish. He finished in 54.21 seconds, just one-tenth of a second behind fifth-place runner Lex Burkhead of Mercer County and one-tenth of a second ahead of seventh-place runner Jordan Brown of Casey County. ## Bat Pats end 12-game skid with 9-4 win over Whitley

By Nancy Leedy

STANFORD — The wait is over.

It was a long time coming, but the Lincoln County Bat Patriots were finally able to look at the scoreboard at the end of the game with a smile on their faces.

The Lincoln baseball team put an end to a 12-game losing streak Thursday by defeating visiting Whitley County 9-4, giving the team its first win since April 13.

"We played pretty good tonight," Lincoln coach Daryl Day said. "When the bottom of our lineup hits, gets on base, scores runs, we're pretty daggone good, especially when Josh Wilson is throwing it well on the mound. We played great defense tonight. I don't think we made an error the whole game. We played it good all the way around."

"Yeah, we had a couple little slow rollers that maybe we didn't play the best. That's alright. We played well and made some aggressive plays. This is the team that we were earlier in the year, and hopefully we're getting back to that at the right time."

innings, had a no-hitter through five innings before Whitley got its first hit of the game. Wilson, who accumulated 11 strikeouts while up, ended up allowing two runs off three hits, with four walks and one hit batter.

"He's thrown it well all year," said Day. "We've got good pitching and he's probably at the top of the heap right now ... He didn't have a good night at the plate and that affected him on the mound a little bit, but he's growing up and getting out of some of that. Can't say enough about Josh because he's a big reason we won tonight because he kept them off balance."

Aaron Estes led the Lincoln battery with two of the team's nine hits, both doubles. He got three RBIs off the hits to help the Bat Patriots jump out to a 9-1 lead in the second inning.

But Lincoln (8-18) stumbled in its next four at-bats. The Bat Patriots got runners on base in the third, fifth and sixth innings, even leaving the bases loaded in the third, only to be held scoreless each time.

"We took our foot off the gas pedal, and you can't do that," Day said. "When you get a team down, especially a team that's struggling a little bit, you've got to find ways to keep getting balls in play, find ways to get that little extra burst

Lincoln softball rally falls short at S-western

LINCOLN'S Kelsey Meece still has her bat at her shoulder as she watches Southwestern catcher Destiny Molden glove this called ball in the fifth inning of the Lady Patriots' 10-7 loss Monday.

SOMERSET — The Lincoln County softball team got off to a quick start Monday at Southwestern, banging out four hits and scoring three runs in the top of the first inning.

Unfortunately, for the Lady Patriots, the host Lady Warriors would get back all three runs and more over the remainder of the game, scoring nine straight runs en route to a 10-7 12th Region win on the War Path Diamond.

Southwestern (12-15) connected for eight hits and scored nine runs in its first four at-bats, then held off a late Lincoln rally to secure the come-from-behind win.

"We scored three in the first and then we just kind of quit hitting the ball and popped up a lot," Lincoln coach Kevin Bandura said. "Their pitcher did a good job of keeping us off balance, and we were kind of lunging for balls a little bit off the plate and popping things up. Once we made that adjustment, we started hitting the ball hard. But we just gave up too many runs."

Lincoln pitcher Sydney Slone helped get her own cause going in the bottom of the first, by tagging a one-out double to left field to drive in Kristen Meece and Hannah Brown. Meece, the leadoff, earned a base on balls off Southwestern's Madison Cook and Brown singled. Chelsea Marcum, who reached ahead of Slone with a one-out single, came on home on a Madisen Hinkle double to left to make it a 3-0 ballgame.

The lead would be shortlived.

Gillian Gibson led off the bottom of the first for Southwestern with a walk, moved to second on a ground out, on to third on a wild pitch then scored on another ground out to make it 3-1 after one.

The Lady Warriors erased the deficit in the second inning, with Shantelle Woodall and Regi Cundiff swept both the boys and girls team titles, won in a time of 50.52 seconds.

ROYCE CUMMINS, pictured above in the 200-meter dash in a meet at Danville, ran sixth in the 800-meter dash at the big Central Kentucky Conference Championships Friday at Boyle County High School. The Lincoln senior sprinted to the finish line in the CKC 800 in 54.21 seconds.

Left, Lincoln Sprinter KATIE KING ran seventh in the 400-meter dash at Friday's meet. Her time in the event was 1:07.02.

Lincoln had a total of nine top 10 finishes in the CKC championships. For the Lady Patriots, Morgan Gourley, Katie King and the 400-meter relay team all earned top 10 finishes and, for the Patriots, Tre Carey and the 800-meter relay finished high.

Gourley toed the starting line with Godbey in the 1600-meter run, and was not far behind her at the finish, crossing in 6:12.16 to place eighth overall. King took the track for the 400-meter dash and ran seventh overall in the event with a time of 1:07.02. And the Lincoln girls 400 relay team raced to an eighth-place finish in the event in 56.32 seconds.

Carey and the Patriot 800 relay team both earned 10th-place finishes at the CKC meet. Carey took 10th in the long jump event with a jump of 17-11.50 and the 800 team was 10th in 1:46.63.

The Lincoln girls finished 11th out of 14 teams at the meet with 15 points and the boys tied for 14th with Frankfort with three points.

Henry Clay was a decisive winner in the boys team championships, with 158 points compared to 92 points for runner-up Boyle County. West Jessamine placed third with 80 points, Mercer County was fourth with 76 points and Pulaski County was fifth with 74.5 points.

It was a 1-2 finish for Henry Clay and Boyle County in the girls team division as well. The Henry Clay girls racked up the most points for first, winning with 141 points. Boyle was second with 130.5 points, Pulaski was third with 83 points, Casey County was fourth with 59 points and Rockcastle placed fifth with 51 points.

both scoring runs. Woodall and Cundiff both reached on a single then scored on the same Lady Patriot throwing error to tie the game at 3-3.

Southwestern went on top to stay in the third inning. Emory Wilds led off the inning with a walk and advanced to third on a Destiny Molden double. Wilds then scored on a ground out and Molden tallied on a wild pitch to make it 5-3. Cundiff put another runner on by getting a 2-out single and Angel Beasley drove her in to make it a 6-3 game.

Slone did not return to the mound for Lincoln in the fourth, with McKenzie Hensley taking over pitching duties.

Woodall showed no mercy for the fresh pitcher, blowing the game wide open when she connected for a 2-out bases-clearing double to left centerfield. The extra-base hit scored Wilds, Molden and Cook and cushioned the Lady Warrior lead to 9-3.

"We really played pretty solid defense, but the middle of their lineup is pretty solid. Their 4, 5 and 6 (Cook, Woodall, Cundiff) are really solid," Bandura said. "The difference in the game was, when they had big situations they got big hits and, when we had big situations, we didn't."

Despite the 9-3 gap, Lincoln (7-12) did not back down.

The Lady Patriots made a cut in the deficit in the top of the fifth inning with one run scored. Marcum led off the inning with a single, moved to second on a wild pitch then scored on a Hinkle double to left to make it 9-4.

The potential was there for more Lincoln runs in the inning, with three runners still on base, but Cook got out of the jam with a strikeout and a ground out.

"One more ball in the gap was what we needed, and we just couldn't get it with the bases loaded to kind of get back in the game," Bandura said. "We hit the ball hard, just right at them, and Southwestern was there to make the plays."

The Lady Warriors got back the run in the bottom of the inning. Wilds, Molden, Cook and Woodall all got hits off Hensley, with Cook's single driving in Wilds to put Southwestern back up by 10-4.

Lincoln would make one final run at Southwestern in the seventh inning, scoring three runs and bringing the tying run to the plate.

Abby Sparkman reached on a one-out walk, moved to second on a Carmen Green single, then scored on a double by pinch hitter Jacque Upchurch. Kristen Meece followed with her own double to plate Upchurch and she later scored on a wild pitch to make it 10-7. Green was thrown out at third base on the Meece hit.

The Lady Patriots got two runners back on base, with Brown and Chyna Dyehouse reaching on singles, and the potential game-tying run, Marcum, was at the plate. However, Lincoln's scoring threat ended when Cook got Marcum to pop up to end the game.

"I'm proud of our kids. They didn't give up and actually had the tying run at the plate," said Bandura. "But, when you're down that far, it's hard to come back. We had some kids make some plays tonight and we started hitting hard, but it was just too little, too late."

MADISEN HINKLE of Lincoln County eyes Southwestern pitcher Madison Cook as she waits for the opportunity to try and score in the fifth inning of the Lady Patriots' 10-7 loss to the Lady Warriors. Cook and the Lady Warriors left three Lincoln runners stranded in the inning, including Hinkle.

ABBY SPARKMAN, Lincoln's third baseman, makes the catch on this fly ball by Southwestern's Angel Beasley in the second inning Monday at Southwestern.

AARON ESTES, Lincoln County's base runner, and Whitley County third baseman Casey Crisologo both are unaware of where the ball is after this attempted throwout of Estes in the first inning when the ball bounced up in the air after hitting the base. Estes finally saw the ball and was on the play ahead of Crisologo, making a mad dash for home to score the Bat Patriots' third run in the 9-4 victory. Estes had two doubles and drove in three runs in the win, which snapped Lincoln's 12-game losing streak.

of speed and beat out that ground ball.”

Lincoln may have let off on the gas pedal after the second inning, but the Bat Patriots got all the scoring they would need in the first two at-bats, with the bottom half of Lincoln’s lineup putting the pedal to the floor. The bottom of the lineup accounted for over half of the team’s hits and drove in five runs, with Cody Lunsford, Trent McElroy, Logan Estes, Killen Day and pinch hitters Dustin Jones and Noah Horton each getting a hit. McElroy and Day drove in two runs each and Logan Estes drove in one. Lunsford was also hit by Whitley pitchers twice and scored two runs.

“Cody Lunsford gets on base, Killen (Day) gets a big hit there, Trent McElroy gets a big hit, Logan Estes had a big hit. Those are the guys that are the bottom half of our lineup. When they play like that, hit the ball like that, we’re pretty good,” said Day. “We’re not good enough to just go out and relax and think we’re going to win, but we’re good enough to beat some people nobody thinks we can beat when those guys play like that and when we play defense like we did tonight.”

Lincoln got its first runner on base in the first inning when Whitley County starter Caleb Rains hit Austin Smith, then Austin Greer followed Smith on with a walk. Neither was left on base for long as fourth-batter Aaron Estes delivered a one-out double to left field to score both runners. Estes later stole third then scored on a Whitley throwing error to make it 3-1.

After a strikeout to Luke Smith, Lunsford singled to reach and McElroy earned a base on balls. Both runners advanced on a shot to right field by Logan Estes, with Lunsford coming on home to make it 4-1.

Estes’ hit ended Rains’ stint on the mound, with Dylan Wilson coming on in relief, and Wilson ended the inning with a strikeout.

And the Lincoln runs kept coming in the second.

Smith tagged a one-out single to get Lincoln started in the at-bat. After a Greer strikeout, Aaron Estes sent his second double toward the centerfield fence to drive in Smith. Lincoln had the bases loaded after Wilson hit back-to-back batters, putting Luke Smith and Lunsford on base. McElroy then connected for a single to score Estes and Smith.

Logan Estes sent another Whitley pitcher to the dugout when he tagged a 2-run single which scored Lunsford and McElroy and made it 9-1. Kyle Edmisten replaced Wilson on the mound. He gave up a hit to Day before getting Josh Wilson to fly out to end the inning.

The Colonels (15-9) ended up using five pitchers against the Bat Patriots. Brandon Harlan took his place on the mound in the third inning and Jared Partin came on in the sixth. Whitley gave up only two hits and two walks in the third through sixth innings.

“I will give Whitley County this. They changed pitchers several times, and when you change pitchers it makes it hard on hitters,” said Day. “They’ve seen a guy. They’ve stood over here and watched him. They’ve been in the box against him. It’s hard to go out there fresh with a brand new pitcher. We adjusted and we did pretty good, but you can’t see what they’re throwing. You can’t be ready to hit it.”

Whitley didn’t get its first hit until the sixth inning, but the team scored the game’s first run in the top of the first. Casey Crisologo led off the game with a walk and, after stealing his way to third, scored on a Brandon Harlan ground out.

Crisologo also got the first hit and the second run for the Colonels. He singled to reach in the sixth, moved to second on a Mike Harris walk and took third on a Rains hit. Crisologo and Harris were driven in by Austin Caldwell. Austin Ysidro rounded out Whitley’s scoring in the seventh. He singled to reach and scored on a Crisologo ground out for the 9-4 final.

While Day would have preferred a double-digit win, getting a big lead early allowed him to get more players in the game.

“I got a bunch of kids in who I needed to get some swings. I needed them to feel like they’re part of this varsity team. And Dustin Jones comes in and gets a big hit there, and that’s what we need. But I needed to get three or four more in,” Day said. “I needed a ‘feel good’ game. Our guys who started, they feel good about it. I wanted the others to feel good, too. They all feel good, but they’d all felt better if they could have been a part of it and actually got on the field. The JV guys work so hard, and I wish we’d had a 15-1, 16-1 win so we could’ve gotten more in the game.”

Pasture and hay notes

Our pastures are in pretty tough shape now. You may say, “well not mine, why it is belly deep on my cows”. That is the problem. Our pastures are too mature. Once that seed head comes out the quality of pasture really goes down. Sure the cows will eat some of it but it really doesn’t make them milk well so the calf doesn’t gain much. Letting the grass fields go this long without mowing it really reduces the grasses ability to bounce back with new growth. If you have already mowed your pastures you probably are seeing good growth now and will thus have pretty good grass for summer. If you haven’t mowed your pastures then do it now. That grass plant thinks it is done since it has headed out. You can trick it into growing again by mowing it. Take advantage of our good growing conditions to let that grass grow back and make good pasture.

I also want to encourage you to think about sowing some summer annual grasses to get good summer grazing. Even if it gets dry and hot these grasses still will do well. If you have more pasture from the summer annuals than you need then you can make good hay. The newer varieties we have today are improved so they are better quality, have thinner stems which helps in hay making, and they are easier to manage for livestock since the toxicity levels have been greatly reduced through breeding programs.

There are several options in Kentucky for hay or pasture in the form of summer annual forage plants. These include sorghum-sudan hybrids, sudan grasses, pearl millet, foxtail millet, german millet and Teff.

FARM FACTS
Dan Grigson
Lincoln County Extension
Office, UK College of Agriculture

They will all produce some hay or pasture in about 45 to 60 days with some rainfall and nitrogen fertilization.

Sorghum-sudan grass hybrids are rapidly growing grasses which produce a good quality forage if managed properly. They have large stems which can quickly become tough and unpalatable if not managed properly. These are also much more likely to contain toxic levels of prussic acids than other summer annual grasses. Prussic acid is another name for hydrogen cyanide which can kill grazing animals under special conditions.

Sudan grass and sudan grass hybrids stems are generally not as coarse as sorghum sudan hybrids and these plants are less likely to contain such high levels of prussic acid. They have smaller stems, don’t grow as high, are easier to cut for hay and less prone to trampling under grazing. These grasses are my favorite from what I have seen in our Lincoln County summer annual variety tests plots.

Pearl millet is an annual grass with smaller stems and is generally leafier than a sorghum sudan grass hybrid. One advantage of pearl millet is that it does not have the potential to cause toxic levels of prussic acid. Most varieties will regrow after cutting or grazing. Be careful what variety you get or it will get 12 feet tall. Ask for the pasture and hay type hybrid.

Foxtail or german millet does not regrow after cutting. For this reason it is considered a one-cut summer annual that I think is too expensive to try. Teff is an old crop with a new name. It is what we used to call lovegrass. There has been a lot of advertising about how wonderful it is, some of which is true. However a lot of misinformation has been put out about Teff. It is a grass, so you will have to fertilize it with nitrogen to get good yields. It is a little hard to establish. It is easily killed by frost. You have to be careful to not graze it hard or it will die. It is an annual crop so it has to be sown every year. It like the other summer annuals is hard to cure and most of the time it will be best to make round bale silage with it. For more information on the use of summer annuals give me a call.

I want to change gears now and talk about our many bales of good hay that was rolled up in early May. Several of you took my advice and mowed hay early and thus you have some very good quality hay.

Round bales of hay that will be stored outside should be moved to a permanent storage site as soon as possible after baling. For outside storage: Store bales in a well drained area. Store bales end-to-end in rows. Leave a minimum of three feet between rows for air circulation. Run bale rows up and down the slope. Store on coarse gravel, old tires, poles, pallets, etc.... Do not store bales under trees, in fence rows and in the shade of buildings, as they dry out too slowly each day causing more rot.

If round bales are to be stored inside they should not be moved inside until they have gone through the sweat period. Don’t put bales inside until 2-3 weeks after baling. Check to make sure they have cooled down before moving them inside.

Stay green, cool despite the heat

Being green in the Bluegrass is not always the easiest thing to do. Sometimes, it’s actually much harder to be green here than it is in other places.

It seems like just yesterday was the first day of spring. Really, it has been spring since March 20, so we’re in the middle of spring (Summer doesn’t officially begin until June 21). But in typical Kentucky fashion, it seems like we have completely bypassed spring and taken a dive straight into summer.

I am not a fan of the recent hot weather. My favorite seasons are spring and fall because of their mild temperatures. But the Bluegrass is in a special spot geographically: we aren’t a northern state that gets truly frigid and snowy in winter, and we aren’t very far south where the summers are blazing. Because of our location in the middle, we often get a good amount of the cold and the hot.

While northern states are enjoying mild summers without air conditioning, Kentuckians have to blast the A/C to stay comfortable. While southern states are relaxing in snowless winters, Kentuckians are heating their homes.

I know that this winter was very harsh and seemed to last a very long time — I have the heating bills to prove it. Even though I often keep the thermostat as cool as I can and bundle up as much as possible, this winter was so cold that we had to use a lot of heat — and we definitely paid for it.

Kentucky ranks ninth in the U.S. for energy use per person, according to 2012 data from the U.S. Energy Information Administration. I’m sure no small part of that comes from heating and cooling.

But there are ways to keep cool now that the temperatures are rising without breaking the bank or burning as much energy:

Open your windows in the morning and evening when the sun isn’t in full force. Let cool breezes circulate through your house, cooling it naturally. Make sure to close those windows in the late morning and afternoon and cover them with curtains to keep out the heat from the afternoon sun.

If you are leaving the house for most

GOING GREEN
In the Bluegrass

Amanda Wheeler
Eco-Columnist

of the day, you can turn your thermostat up a few degrees in order not to cool an empty house. If you need a new thermostat, consider a programmable one that can automatically use less energy when you’re not around to enjoy the cool air.

Even when you are home, you can leave your A/C off and opt for running a couple of fans to circulate the air. A little bit of windchill can often make the whole house feel better, even if temperatures are a bit warm.

If you have older windows, sealing them will help keep cool air in and hot air out. This will help with the cooling efficiency of your home. Your electric company probably offers at least educational materials on how to weatherproof your home, and it might even provide weather-proofing assistance.

Most electric companies offer programs where they credit your account if you allow them to cycle off your HVAC system during peak hours of use. This is a great way to save money and the environment. Electric companies have to burn a lot of fossil fuels to provide energy at peak-usage times. Lowering the stress on the electric grid means less fossil-fuel consumption. And the only effect is that your house might not cool down quite as fast or stay a degree warmer.

Solar panels can be a good investment because the electricity they generate over time can be worth more than the price of the panels. Plus, many solar panels on residential homes are hooked back into the electric grid, which means if you are capturing more energy than your home is using, it will actually spin your electric meter backwards, reducing your bill. It’s like paying your electric bill with sunlight instead of cash, which I think is pretty cool.

If you have any tips for staying cool and green at the same time, let me know at amandawheelerphoto@live.com.

U of the Cumberlands students named to J.T. Vallandingham Scholastic Honor Society

University of the Cumberlands named 37 students to the J.T. Vallandingham Scholastic Honor Society during the 56th Annual Honors Day program.

Local students include: Rachel Sims of Crab Orchard and Rachel Cook of Stanford.

In order to be eligible for membership, a student must have completed at least 96 semester hours as a full-time student and have a 3.5 standing or better each semester. The student must have a cumulative standing of 3.7 or better. Students who have transferred to the University have a different set of rules depending on grade point average (GPA) and number of hours taken at UC.

In the Spring of 1961, as the College was preparing to graduate its first four-year class, the faculty voted to establish the Cumberland College Scholastic Honor Society. Its purpose was to recognize outstanding academic achievement as a separate award from the Dean's List. The faculty also voted to approve the establishment of an Honors Day Committee under the chairmanship of Dr. J. T. Vallandingham, and the first students were inducted into the society on February 21, 1961. On April 1, 1964, the College faculty voted to change the name of the society to the Dr. J. T. Vallandingham Scholastic Honor Society in honor of Dr. Val's personal and professional commitment to the highest standards possible for himself, his students, and Cumberland College, now University of the Cumberlands.

Cumberlands students named to High Honor Roll

Ephraim McDowell Health Auxiliary sponsors teenage volunteer program

Are you a teenager, or do you know one who may be interested in a career in health care? Ephraim McDowell Health is accepting applications for the summer Student Volunteer Program.

The program is open to teenagers (age 14 through their senior year in high school) and is particularly helpful to those interested in pursuing a career in health care, but also an opportunity for teenagers who are just looking to give back to the community through community service.

The program will begin June 15 and continue through July 31. Volunteers must attend a two-hour orientation session on June 10 or June 12. The eight-week program enables teens to assist in many areas of health care. All participating teens must commit to at least six of the eight weeks of the program.

Daily scheduling is set up in two sessions, 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Participants may choose to attend either session or all day. For example, should a participant choose to volunteer all day, they will be assigned to one area in the morning and another area in the afternoon. This allows for a varied experience and greater satisfaction. Student volunteers are allowed to volunteer a maximum of three days per week.

"Our volunteer program will provide teenagers a behind-the-scenes look at how a hospital delivers care to patients," says Rebecca Rowe, manager, Ephraim McDowell Health Volunteer Services. "Doctors and nurses are a big part of the continuum of care at a hospital, but there are many other roles and responsibilities in health care."

Anyone interested in the Student Volunteer Program can receive a student volunteer application packet by contacting Volunteer Services at (859) 239-1208 or rebecca.rowe@emhealth.org. The application packet includes important information such as the application, parent permission slip, and information concerning health requirements (TB test and immunization records.) All applications must be received no later than Friday, May 29, 2015.

FINANCIAL AID TIP OF THE MONTH

State offers numerous student aid programs

Kentuckians needing help with college costs may be able to take advantage of the student aid programs administered by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA). They include the:

- Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). Kentucky students earn KEES awards by making good grades in public and private high schools. They can earn more by doing well on the ACT. Home-schooled and GED students can earn KEES awards based on their ACT scores.

- College Access Program Grant. This grant can be used at the state's public colleges and many of Kentucky's private colleges. It is based on need.
- Kentucky Tuition Grant. Also based on need, this grant is available to students attending the state's private colleges.

- Go Higher Grant. This program provides funding for adult students who attend college on a part-time basis.

Except for KEES, students must submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, also called the FAFSA, to apply for these awards. Some also require a separate application.

Kentucky schools urged to apply for $5,000 grants

Application deadline June 15

The National Farm to School Network is accepting applications from eligible schools or school districts in Kentucky for $5,000 mini-grants to help jump start new farm-to-school activities or ramp up existing programs.

"I encourage Kentucky schools to apply for these mini-grants to enable their students to grow up healthy and eat more local Kentucky Proud food," Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said.

Grants can be used for local food for tastings, new processing equipment, hosting events, and building school gardens.

All non-profit schools and school districts in Kentucky are eligible to apply. Deadline for applications is Monday, June 15. The Seed Change application and more information can be found at www.farmtoschool.org/seedchange.

An informational webinar on preparing a strong proposal and the application process for mini-grants will be Thursday, May 21 at 2 p.m. EDT.

To register, go to <https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/8615574469832001282>.

For answers to questions, email seed-change@farmtoschool.org.

Seed Change will award up to 100 mini-grants in Kentucky, Louisiana, and Pennsylvania. Seed Change is an 18-month, $1.5-million project funded by the Walmart Foundation addressing barriers to farm to school in states that are ripe for significant growth. The mini-grants will support a wide variety of activities including school garden activities, food and nutrition education, kitchen equipment to enable utilization of local foods, and food service staff training at emerging farm-to-school sites.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture and the National Farm to School Network will provide statewide outreach efforts, trainings, and technical assistance to create a robust farm-to-school network for long-term program sustainability.

Mattingly chosen to attend Rogers Scholars program

Lincoln County student Auburn Mattingly has been selected by The Center for Rural Development to attend the 2015 Rogers Scholars program.

Auburn, a sophomore at Lincoln County High School, will join 63 high school students from Southern and Eastern Kentucky this summer for the 18th annual Rogers Scholars youth leadership program.

Rogers Scholars – The Center’s flagship youth program – is an intensive one-week summer program that provides leadership and college scholarship opportunities for high school students in 45 Kentucky communities to build their skills as the region’s next generation of business and entrepreneurial leaders.

“The Rogers Scholars program gives high school students an experience of a lifetime to grow their leadership skills while learning how to become more community-minded,” said youth programs coordinator Delaney Stephens. “Each graduate earns access to exclusive college scholarship offers from some of the state’s top-ranked colleges and universities upon completion of a required community service project.”

The 2015 Rogers Scholars program will be held June 21-26 and July 12-17 on the campus of Lindsey Wilson College in Adair County. There is no tuition charge to attend the program and lodging and food are provided free of charge to participants.

Auburn is the daughter of Michael and Kristie Mattingly of Hustonville.

Since 1998, 996 high school students have graduated from Rogers Scholars, and potential scholarships valued at more than $7.2 million have been offered to graduates by 17 partner colleges and universities.

For more information about the Rogers Scholars program, visit www.centeryouthprograms.com or call youth programs coordinator Delaney Stephens at (606) 677-6000.

Money Tip: Dealing with debt collectors

If you’re having trouble paying your student loans and other debts, you may be contacted by a debt collection agency.

Don’t try to dodge a collector. It’s in your best interest to work with the agency to work out a payment schedule so you can pay your debts and start to reestablish your credit.

Most collection agencies abide by the law, but you may be contacted by one that doesn’t.

In that case, you should know your rights and responsibilities, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

The agency must tell you the amount requested and the name of the creditor, as well as what to do if you don’t think you owe the money.

An agency trying to collect a debt may not make threats, use tricks to try to get someone to pay or make calls late at night.

If you think a collection agency has violated the law, you can file a complaint with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau at www.consumerfinance.gov.

KHEAA is the state agency that administers Kentucky’s grant and scholarship programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). It provides financial literacy videos at <http://its-money.kheaa.com>. KHEAA also provides free copies of “It’s Money, Baby,” a guide to financial literacy, to Kentucky schools and residents upon request at publications@kheaa.com.

To learn how to plan and prepare for higher education, go to www.gotocollege.ky.gov. For more information about Kentucky scholarships and grants, visit www.kheaa.com; write KHEAA, P.O. Box 798, Frankfort, KY 40602; or call 800-928-8926, ext. 6-7214.
